THE NATIVES

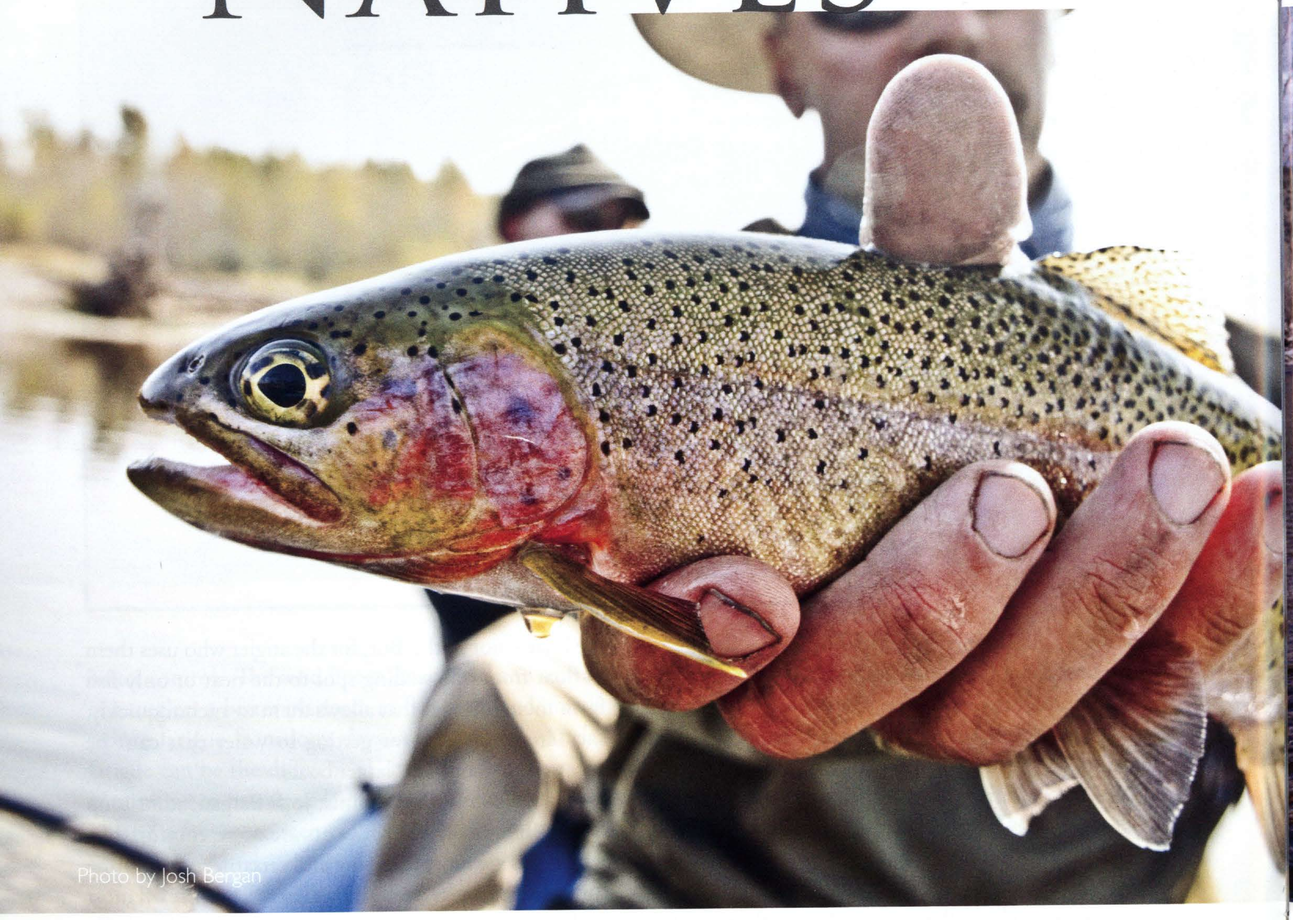

Photo by Josh Bergan

Species of fish that have been here since the beginning of time always pique our curiosity. The biologist wonders if they have always flourished and will in the future. The angler wonders how large they once were and dreams about traveling backward in time to battle a few. Regardless, they are all special creatures and vary greatly in appearance and habitat.

Photo by Josh Bergan

The cutthroats, Westslope and Yellowstone, are the elegant, distinctively-Montana offspring. They thrive in clean, cold waters and provide the fly angler with much satisfaction. While they are vulnerable from competition in certain drainages, overall they remain an integral species.

Photo by Josh Bergan

Photo by Josh Bergan